Sustainability is becoming increasingly important in the design of offices. The furniture works A. Decker from Borgentreich in the district of Höxter are now picking up on this trend. For the first time under the name decker | office, they offer a comprehensive solid wood program for professional offices. This extends Decker's range of solid wood furniture beyond the themes of living, dining and cooking.

Decker office furniture combines modern design with longevity and naturalness. When it comes to the climate-neutral production of solid wood furniture, Decker's furniture know-how, which has grown over decades, plays a key role. PEFC-certified wood selection, climate-neutral production, quality and pollution-tested furniture; All of this contributes to a healthy indoor climate and a sustainably designed work environment and ensures an improved life cycle assessment for the user.

"deckerlooffice" currently comprises five practical product lines for almost every application. Offices, as well as rest and reception areas as well as meeting rooms can therefore be set up individually as well as sustainably. The numerous furniture variants can also be easily combined across the product lines.

Customized solutions are also available on request for particularly complex office situations, as custom-made products are standard at Decker.
